

Rassina

We were told the sea would calm down
For sure, we would all be safe
We were told to hold on tight
On board, there was still space
One more would join us
For whom, we threw away
Our names and our stories, in the water
We were told, keep sailing
To an unknown bay

We sail and fall asleep
We wake up and realize
That we've drifted on the endless sea
Take us to land
Anchor us

We were told not to worry
The sea wouldn't take anyone
Waves would not be cruel
They would wave at us only from a distance
While we rowed with our lives and souls
While our prayers sank into the sea
Leaving that weary town, was it a mistake?

Take us to land
Anchor us

Take us to land
Anchor us

In memory of all the ones who had no way out, but the sea
